

Program Specific Outcomes: Bachelor of Arts (BA) in Defence and Strategic Studies

Objective: The program aligns with the principles of NEP 2020, focusing on multidisciplinary, outcome-based, and skill-oriented education. Students are prepared for critical engagement with security challenges and strategic studies in national and global contexts through theoretical, practical, and research-based approaches.

Year-wise Learning Outcomes:

1. BA, First Year

- Develop a foundational understanding of key definitions, types, and theories of war and peace.
- Explore the evolution of military strategies, defence concepts, and technological advancements in warfare.
- Emphasis on interdisciplinary studies linking history, political science, and sociology for contextual understanding.

2. BA, Second Year

- Analyze contemporary security challenges, focusing on national security frameworks and global strategic dynamics.
- Engage in critical evaluation of war theories and strategies through case studies.
- Participate in internships, fieldwork, and simulation exercises for practical insights.

3. BA, Third Year

- Apply advanced knowledge in national and international security policies, focusing on emerging challenges like cyber warfare, terrorism, and space security.
- Develop solutions through strategic thinking and policy frameworks for real-world security scenarios.
- Undertake a capstone project or thesis emphasizing research and innovative strategies.

Course Outcomes

Upon completion of the program (six semesters), students will:

- Demonstrate critical thinking, analytical abilities, and in-depth knowledge of defence and strategic studies.
- Gain professional and transferable skills essential for careers in academia, research, policymaking, or national defence services.
- Engage in experiential learning through field visits, internships, educational tours, and seminars.
- Adapt to lifelong learning opportunities with flexibility in higher education or vocational pursuits.
